MARSHALL COUNTY WORKERS WILL MEET IN PLYMOUTH TO FURTHER THE WORK OF ALL CHURCHES

SPLENDID PROGRAM

Teachers Training Banquet to Form Important Part of Session

Noted Workers to Be Present.

Local and State Sunday School workers are looking forward with eager anticipation to the splendid program arranged for the meeting of the Marshall county association in Plymouth Feb. 16, 17, 18. The sessions will be held in the Presbyterian church.

Important among the attractive features is the Teacher Training banquet which is in charge of Miss Estella Chase. The following "notes" from the program will be of interest to many:

Notes.

Tables and hot coffee will be provided free to all who wish to bring lunch on Friday and Saturday.

All who depend upon the Committee for entertainment please notify Mrs. A. R. Underwood, 401 north Center St., Plymouth, Ind., on or before Feb. 14.

General Sec'y. Geo. N. Burnie is a welcome guest Marshall county and everyone will be glad to greet him and hear him.

The Rev. Peter Moerdyke of South Bend, who preaches the convention sermon, will also be heard in other lines. He comes as a friend and brother to give help and to gain inspiration from all we may have to give him.

Dr. Christopher Humble, now of Chicago but long of the South, represents the International Staff. He is a "workman approved," a man with a message. Parents and teachers will be repaid to hear Dr. Humble. Mark his hour and be on time.

Mr. J. E. Delmarter, Evangelistic singer and Bible teacher of 3746 N. 44 Ave., Chicago, will lead in the singing. He was here last year—that is saying enough to those who heard him. Mr. Delmarter will bring a supply of "The Songs of the Century" No. 2 from the press of Geo. D. Elderkin, Chicago, and all the people will sing.

During the past year Indiana had to yield with reluctance, her Elementary grade superintendent, Mrs. Baldwin, to Pennsylvania. After careful search one has been called to fill the place in the person of Miss Hazel A. Lewis. Miss Lewis comes to us from the Ohio S. S. Association, which is warrant that she is thoroughly prepared. Miss Lewis promises to be present throughout our convention.

The Fourth Annual "Teacher Training Banquet" and Graduation Exercise will be held at 4:45 o'clock on Thursday afternoon. The class of 1911 will be presented and receive their diplomas. The tickets are 40 cents, and owing to limited space only about one hundred and fifty can be offered. These may be obtained from any resident Teacher Training graduate and seats will be reserved for late comers if tickets are bought before Feb. 15.

PEDAGOGUES HOLD ANNUAL INSTITUTE

MARSHALL TEACHERS HOLD INTERESTING SESSION AT WEBSTER SCHOOL BUILDING LAST WEEK

OVER 150 PRESENT

A Special Feature of the Program Was Work of Plymouth Pupils

In Dramatization of Stories.

The keys of the city was turned over to teachers for Friday and Saturday. From the north, south, east and west of Marshall county they have gathered 150 strong to attend the seventeenth annual session of the Marshall County Teachers' Association. Judging by their fine appearance, both as individuals and as a body, the keys are perfectly safe in their keeping.

There are in Marshall county a total of 194 teachers; males 79, females 115. Several schools over the county had not been dismissed owing to a lack of funds to pay for the institute and on this account the attendance was somewhat smaller than was expected. Supt. Steinhach had left no stone unturned for the success of this meeting. The Webster Building, under the care of Janitor Wrightman, was the pink of perfection as regards neatness and cleanliness.

The morning session opened by the singing of America by the Association. In the forced absence of the President Edward Cook, of Bremen, Glen Dillingham, of Bourbon township was chosen temporary chairman. Miss Ella Marsh, of Plymouth acted as temporary secretary. O. A. Greiner, of Plymouth is Treasurer. Miss Edith Neidig of Bourbon presided at the piano.

Invocation was conducted by Rev. Pfug, of Plymouth, who gave the teachers some sound advice as to the moral training of their scholars. Another hymn was then sung after which Supt. I. S. Hahn, of Culver, discussed the question, "What does the Public Demand of our Schools."

Prof. Hahn said there are three things about which everybody has an opinion and is ready to give advice. These are the editing of a newspaper, the driving of a horse, and the teaching of a school. The advice depends somewhat upon the vocation of the advisor. Among other things, Prof. Hahn made a plea for the teaching of patriotism, not the marching to martial music, nor "whooping it up" for the flag but the cultivation of the cardinal virtues and the efficiency which would make good citizens. "The pupil," he said, "naturally likes to come a minute late, and dislikes to stop at a given moment. He is rebellious and objects to submitting to the rules of a body. He should be taught to adjust himself to regulated order, to be prompt, obedient, and not to talk back, nor argue, but to do readily what is expected of him."

"The carpenter learns the use of his tools. The child should be taught the use of those tools of learning-books. His physical development should be looked after, and above all he should be taught common honesty and moral purity."

Ralph Denny, of Lapaz, ably discussed this subject farther. He said we should consider, not so much what the public demands, as what they need. We often listen to the cry for entertainment and give so many pleasing things that our scholars are mere "Jacks of all trades," and lack the power of concentrating their will on any subject. Education should not make the student so dissatisfied with the present that he wants to bury himself in the literature or art of the past. He should take part in the solution of the problems of today.

When the subject was thrown open for general discussion, Supt. Rizer, of Bourbon, suggested that education was the sum of the knowledge and experience of the race in all ages and an attempt should be made to convey a working equipment of this to the child.

At the close of the morning session, Supt. Steinhach submitted a resolution for the consideration of the Association, upon which a vote will be taken Saturday afternoon. It read as follows:

"Owing to the fact that State Board of Accounts do not allow township trustees to pay teachers out of the school fund for attendance upon institutes, and that for this reason many schools over the county have not closed to allow their teachers to attend, therefore, be it resolved that the Marshall County Teachers Association be discontinued."

It was suggested that most teachers had the opportunity to attend the Northern Indiana and the State Education associations and the county association was not needed. Some, who have attended these meetings from duty rather than from pleasure will feel relieved at its discontinuance but many who have loved the Association for long years will see its dissolution with deep regret.

Visiting teachers and those parents who attended the exercises at the Webster school Friday afternoon were pleased to find the manual training classes in actual process. Many, who had never seen this kind of work in an up-to-date school were greatly surprised at the proficiency of boys and girls so young.

Principal McKesson directs the work of the seventh and eighth grade boys, in a large well lighted room on the second floor of the Webster school house. Here are carpenter benches over which the nine youthful handicraftsmen bend with eager zeal. Some of the boys are in their second year's manual training and have learned to use with skill the hammer, saw, file, vice, maul, plane, square and level.

About the room and on the tables were exhibits showing what the boys can do. Among these were calendar pads, necktie holders, whisk broom holders, picture frames and key-racks. Besides these fancy articles some of the boys have constructed molding boards, razor strops and other "practical" things which are used in their homes.

To get a full appreciation of this carpentry one must see the rude boards as they come into the room all unplanned. These the lads must make smooth and even, taking pains not to gouge too deeply, nor scratch nor chip them. Next they must draw the design of what they are to construct. Most of these designs are original and they are very artistic, too. One was decorated with a basket of flowers, another had a point-spray and others some conventional pattern or ivy or acanthus leaf. The key-rack is one of the simplest looking articles but when the board is planned, it is no small trick to make all the measurements exactly symmetrical so that none of the corners are askew. The background of this model is made of white pine and on this a piece of dark cedar must be glued with such care that it shall be in the exact center equidistant from all the corners and shall lie perfectly even and flat. Its corners, must all be true. About each key hook are little oblique squares whose angles demand the most careful attention of the artist to make them correct. This piece is decorated by a border and filling of tiny, checked dots made with a punch and hammer. If any boy, with that elusiveness supposed to belong to his age should drive the punch with too heavy or a poorly directed stroke, the work requiring so much care might be spoiled at the last. After noting all this one can easily believe that manual training teaches self control and shows the awkward lad "what to do with his hands" just at the time when he needs this knowledge most.

Across the hall were equally industrious young ladies, most of them in their early teens, putting the neatest and finest of stitches into various dainty fabrics. Miss Miller had been their teacher, but in her absence Miss Southwick has them in charge. The girls from the sixth grade on are taught to sew and the product of their needlecraft is most gratifying. Those who have been lamenting the decay of the "good old domestic arts" in the maidenhood of today should be led about the sewing room and shown the various exhibits on the walls, all the work of Plymouth school girls. Gay slipper bags, thirty gingham aprons, dainty white pin-flores, muslin lingerie, and doll garments are all made by hand with seam after seam and hem after hem so flawless as to demand the praise of the most exacting.

Many were pleased to see also in this room the art and construction models mounted in the various books kept by each room for that purpose, in order that the Superintendent may know exactly what each is doing. Here were calendars, decorated programs, Christmas stockings free hand cuttings, water colors, ink sketches, physiology diagrams, relief maps, Dutch shoes and Indian wigwags, each connected with other lessons or appropriate to a season, and telling a story of progress from grade to grade.

A large audience gathered in the auditorium at 1:45 to witness the Dramatization of Stories by the children of the lower grades. Those who expected superior acting were of course disappointed for such is not to be found among normal school children of that age, but the plays were a demonstration of the great interest children take in "doing" history and literature as well as reading about it.

The first graders, Miss Haines' room were very cute and enthusiastic in the performance of several nursery plays. Boy Blue, Farmer Brown, Mrs. White Hen, white Kitten, Brown Duck, Gray Goose, and Wise Owl played their roles to an appreciative audience. Perhaps the most taking character was "Joimny Cake" who was devoured by Mr. Sly Fox. The sick doll was visited by a doctor wise enough to remove the cause of sickness, i. e. cake, which he amiably ate.

The second room, drilled by their teacher, Miss Laura Boss, rendered beautifully a motion song. They were dressed in colonial style and gave a little play written by Miss Boss, in which a colonial dame Mable Milner was hostess to George and Martha Washington, Thompson Lawrence and Marjorie Morecombe, Molly Stark, Helen Reed, Robert Morris, Audrey Bryan, Emily Geiger, Mary Vanactor, Betsy Ross, Leonore Hunter, Paul Jones, Paul Cunningham, and Gen. Gage, Ross Worthington. Donald Spitzer made an excellent negro porter. While the guests were drinking tea seven boys recited in concert a hatchet piece illustrating it with vigorous and appropriate gestures with the hatchet. Following this the colonial folk danced the minuet with dignity and grace and sang a patriotic medley, also compiled by Miss Boss. A pleasing feature of this was the flag drill in connection, with gestures in unison with the thought.

Grades four and five Miss Stark's Room played the German masterpiece William Tell. The acting was simple and natural and more than once brought tears or anxious tremors to the sympathetic onlookers. William Tell was Cleatus Hahn; Hedwig, his wife was Marie Schweininger, Russell Wise was Tell's son and stood unflinchingly while the arrow was really shot toward his head. Walter Cunningham was Gessler, and while he had an unpopular part, he performed it well.

Facts and Figures

Indiana stands first in the Union in the production of soft winter wheat.

Indiana grows annually more than 2,500,000 acres of wheat.

The average yield in the state for the past ten years has been 13.3 bushels per acre.

The cost of producing an acre of wheat in Indiana is about $12.37. An increase of five bushels in the average yield per acre would mean an annual increase in the value of the crop of $12,500,000.

The average yield of wheat grown under ordinary farm conditions on the Purdue Experiment Station Farm or the past 25 years has been 28 bushels per acre.

Experiments in ten representative counties in the state have shown an average gain due to fertilization of wheat of 11.6 bushels per acre. The average cost per acre of fertilization was $3.67, leaving a net profit per acre of $7.55.

In a comparison of wheat grown continuously on land with that of wheat in a four-course rotation with clover, it was found that the plots in the rotation yielded 5.6 bushels per acre greater than the plots in the continuous wheat series.

PROCTOR BILL MADE LAW BY THE GOVERNOR

NEW OPTION MEASURE AT LAST BECOMES LAW AFTER LONG DELAY AND CONSULTATION

AN AMENDATORY ACT

Additional Clause Provides for Taking Township Poll of Voters Requires Many Poll Takers

Governor Marshall signed the Proctor platform township and city option bill Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the presence of the secretary, Mark Thistlethwaite, and Burt New, legal clerk.

The bill was signed in the Governor's office with a common steel pen, the one used by the Governor for all other purpose, and will not be presented to the Democratic Editorial Association or any other association.

There was no demonstration of any kind. The bill was brought to the Governor's office early in the afternoon and deposited by Mr. Thistlethwaite in the executive safe where it was kept until taken to the Governor a short time later.

Although there were errors in the original copy of the Proctor option bill, it was held in the Senate after having been enrolled the second time because of the absence of any provision for determining the number of voters in the territory outside a city when all of the city is not within one township. Whether to ask the unanimous consent of the General Assembly to change the bill, hold up the first bill and start a new bill through the State Legislature, or amend the original bill, was discussed by the Governor with Senator Stotsenburg, Senator Fleming and Senator Kistler. Finally, the last course was adopted, but the Governor decided to withhold his signature until the amendment was drafted in a party caucus.
